

Blueprints for the Magnetism Powered Generator main electrical generator blueprints

all super magnets will be powered by a timed hand crank or manual crank and then will be reset to run on less than 1% of it's own power.

All magnets use a little bit of electricity to make them more powerful like an electro magnet but not too powerful or else the powerful force could break the machine easily but is powerful enough to push each other away like pushing someone on a swingset. The magnetic sticks will first have to be pushed back to prevent it from constantly running and for maintence. When the generator is ready to work you crank the electrical magnets to startup the super magnets, and then the generator starts turning. Then electrical converters will switch the power from the crank to a portion of it's own power, it will only use what is needed and the rest goto a battery, or a power station.

This generator machine, is using a light silvery material so it can spin faster, and lighter so it can easily keep running without much effort.

these blueprints have been redone for scribd

Some footnotes

The coil wheel turns on pure magnetism that gives us electricity and what powers it to move is also magnetism, thus a clean and independant and marvelous alternative energy source

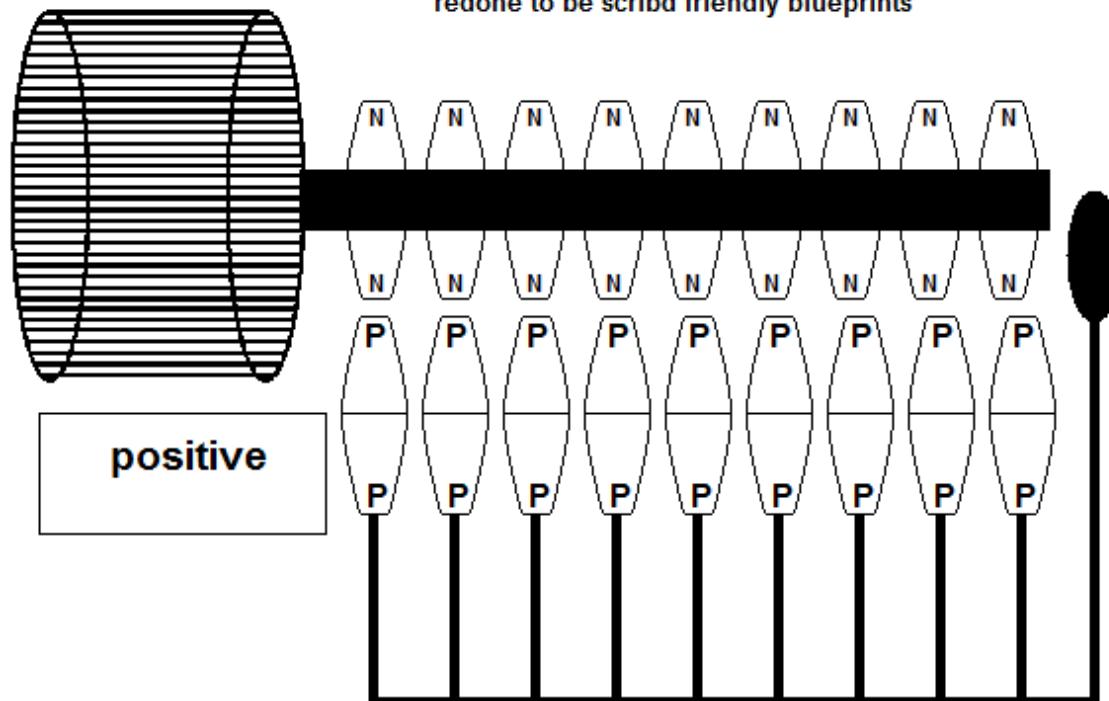

The whole idea runs on perpetual motion, it's not just the generator that runs on magnetism, the turbines are also powered by electric.

So it runs all on magnetism, not on any other resources and requires no solar panel fields or giant fields with wind machines, all it requires is a big area to fit a giant sized perpetual motion powered generator, no solar fields, no giant dams for clean electricity, it can run coils anywhere, underground, in windless areas, on mars, on the moon, anywhere that has magnetism, that would also means energy independance because biofuels require us to still rely on giant energy corporations which means we can still have energy crises and massive inflation and deflation of the dollar.

This requires no death tolls from coal mines, this requires no strip mining for raw materials, which means further protecting the enviroment.

negative

These are not the original released blueprints, because they had to be redone to be scribd friendly blueprints positive

There are coils to generate electricity and so it uses magnetism like a simple generator.

the Negative gets pushed away by positive but since it can't move away since it's bolted to the generators pole then it will force it to turn by the power of the magnetic force.

This is the magnet release system that when you need to stop the generator temporarily like say if you are a power company official or resident that needs to check for any problems they can temporary stop this and while using batteries as a temp. electric while checking it by using this release to stop the magnetic pressure and then it stops turning once the maintenance check is complete the magnet release lever can now be switched to move the magnets into position and then a temp crank to force the magnetic field to force the wheel to start moving.

These are the blueprints on a non tested idea of that since magnets create electricity and can repel each other that it can be used or be used with a bit of super magnetism to create a generator that can run on pieces of its own power which means it runs without any resources, that means it can be super efficient, it is totally clean and green and only needs little bits of maintenance such as oiling it, and checking for problems and then can run again. This is based on ideas of perpetual motion but it doesn't run forever because it needs to be maintained once and a while but the whole concept is that since the world's having widespread resource issues and possible future resource wars the only way we can survive peak oil issues is to use a completely independent and clean energy source that does not use bio-fuels (which means possible forced government subsidies), also doesn't require any coal (Which causes coal miners to die or strip mining which permanently destroys nature forever :(and causes possible damage to peoples homes), and doesn't release CO₂ which means the end of global warming problems and in End to pollution and can start a future where factories run on perpetual motion instead of pollution. So my whole blueprints, my ideas if to put an end to a lot of energy conflicts on how to use universal clean and green technology.

I also want this idea to stay public domain so that there will be no monopolies on this idea and this also destroys any possibility of oil exes. or electric company exes. from buying up patents or patenting my idea. Once this is public any business can take my idea and make generators on this and possibly sell them, use them, or do whatever the heck anybody likes with them, as long as it's peaceful and not violent.

My ideas should not be used for war because I made them to solve our ever growing energy scams and energy crises including higher gas taxes and higher gas prices because if cars ran on this generator cars would way a ton less which means way less taxes to fix our roads and with a car so light trucks can carry more and we pay less taxes and less taxes our needed by our government if they can severely cut costs by using this generator idea.

It would stabilize our economy and shoot it up to making America more powerful, independent nation that needs no foreign oil. Thus my idea would end the depression and valuate the dollar and put us higher than the euro since the greedy energy corporations can no longer make all this money from us, the stock markets can become balanced and more people can build jobs for themselves and be closer to their families and our countries jobs would rise very high.